Safety of tourists in Goa

Vinod Chandrashekhar Dixit
Free-lance Journalist
Ahmedabad

Goa is one of the top beach tourism destinations in the country, attracts lakhs of tourists every year. According to the sources, more than 6 million tourists arrive in the state of Goa every year and this figure shows an upward trend with every passing year. There is no doubt that Goa is one of the top most choices of destination in India for the foreigners. The increasing number of arrivals whether from the national or international reveals that fact that Goa is a most wanted destination for the tourists from across the world.

Goa has always had its share of tourist troubles - from the nudist beaches of the sixties to drug peddling, and more recently, to pedophilia rackets. Rape and sexual abuse are interlinked with drug abuse. It is indeed a concern for the Government and stakeholders of the Tourism Industry of Goa. India's tourism spot Goa is fast becoming a centre for the sex trade and drugs. There are cases reported that many foreign tourists have been sexually assaulted in the past few years in the state. No doubt, the government has increased security for tourists and promised to take tough action against the culprits to avoid these incidents in the future. However, if proper monitoring is not done then problems of law and order and rubbish will spell doom for state tourism. It is reported that about 85% of sex workers operating in Goa and 38% workers in the red light area in Mumbai are from Andhra Pradesh. Young girls supplied by pimps in Andhra Pradesh are slogging in brothels in Goa, Mumbai, Delhi, Kolkata, Karnataka and other States and the neighbouring districts in the State. There is no denying fact that: the sex industry in Goa is flourishing, even though it's largely invisible. Gradually we are losing the image of an international tourist destination. No doubt, the Goa government, through the home department, is augmenting budgets to improve safety and security measures in the State keeping in mind the tourism industry and the importance of providing a safe holiday for tourists visiting Goa.

We find more and more domestic tourists are creating an imbalance to the kind of tourists visiting Goa. We have to be very sensitive towards tourism in Goa because, the whole world is focused towards Goa. From time to time there are reports of 'date rape' or theft-related druggings, usually in busy, trendy tourist bars. The cases of sexual assault against women and young girls are increasing. There have also been incidents of attacks on women. Tourists, especially women, should not wander about unnecessarily at night. It is to be remembered that no person or a place is safe if you are in the wrong place at wrong time and hence blaming the entire state or doubting its integrity is incorrect. It would always be advisable to be take some very basic precautions, avoid traveling late night, keeping your gadgets and wallet safe as you may some time want to travel in the local buses, steer clear of drugs and not carrying much valuable items while travelling. There will always be incidents and unnecessary problems as long as people take drugs. It would be better if tourists wherever they go would be to stay away from drugs.

Even the small things that happen in Goa becomes big news, international news. It is not as though the crime rate is high but it is also certain that if tourists die due to natural causes or overdose of drugs, Goa cannot be considered as unsafe. The tourists must also realise that India is a traditional set up and there is a certain amount of decency required.

Therefore, we have to take care that such things don't happen. If the government really wants to control drug racketeers, they need to seriously take on the local drug lords rather than watch helplessly. Goa can only become the best tourist destination if the government acts on the intelligence reports it has gathered against drug abuse.

Alpina's New Startimer Pilot Automatic Watch Series is launched in India

In the first 50 years of the past century, Alpina was a renowned manufacturer and official supplier of military aviation watches to continental air forces. Early aviation pioneers had strict requirements: their instruments had to be extremely precise and provide ultimate shock resistance. In addition, Alpina's pilot watches were mostly equipped with an anti-magnetic case, highly contrasting dials with oversized luminous numerals and luminous hands for instant readability. Since its initial launch in 2011, the Startimer Pilot Collection has become the most successful collection of the Brand and one of the most recognizable professional pilot watches on the market.

The new Startimer Pilot Automatic maintains all the pilot features the Startimer Collection is known for. The combination of the excellent and qualitative finishing details and very straight functions offer pilot watch aficionados the perfect balance between functionality and elegance on the wrist. ## Gujarat High Court junks Bhupendrasinh Chudasama's plea to reject petition challenging his victory Ahmedabad, In a setback to Education Minister Bhupendrasinh Chudasama, Justice Paresh Upadhyay of the Gujarat High Court has junked his application to reject a petition challenging his victory by the Congress candidate Ashwin Rathod. Senior BJP leader Chudasama won from Dholka constituency with thin margin of 327 votes in the 2017 assembly polls. His contestant and Congress candidate Ashwin Rathod had challenged Chudasama's victory in February this year.

"Bhupendrasinh Chudasama's application for rejection of petition of election petition filed against him by Ashwin Rathod has been dismissed. HC has observed that the election petition needs to be tried and full trial is required to be conducted," told Sharvil Majumdar, Rathod's counsel while talking.

Rathod raised the issue that 429 postal ballot votes have been cancelled by the Returning Officer of the Dholka constituency without assigning any reason. The victory margin is the less than the cancelled votes and hence if the vote would have been considered the result would be different.

However, Chudasama by filed a plea challenged the Congress candidate's claim and pleaded to reject the plea. However, after hearing the case, Justice Upadhyay didn't grant any relief to senior BJP minister. It means the HC will go ahead and hear the petition filed by Rathod.

Chudasama, who was busy in a meeting, not available for comment. Rathod said, "I am fighting the case as I am right. The court has rejected his plea. Not only the ballot papers but even the votes at five booths were not counted by the Returning Officer."

"Gujarat arms students with e-tablets, to empower them technologically" - Vijay Rupani

Ahmedabad, Gujarat Chief Minister Vijay Rupani today inaugurated the Saurashtra University 3-day Youth Festival at Rajkot in presence of Education Minister Bhupendrasinh Chudasama.

Speaking on the occasion, Mr. Rupani said that youth festivals give an opportunity to youth develop their latent talents and at the same time instil patriotism, making Gujarat vibrant. He remembered illustrious sons and seers of Saurashtra, notably Jamsaheb Ranjitsinhji and Bhakta Kavi Narsinh Mehta.

Distributing e-tablets as a token to students, he exuded confidence that this would help them become relevant to technology. As against the state government's target of providing apprenticeship to one lakh youth in the state, he said that 53,000 youth have already been trained in different trades and skill as per their taste, empowering them to pursue profession of their choice.

He said that business acumen is ingrained in the genes of the Gujarati people. He asked the youth to be job-providers rather than job-seekers. Mr. Rupani recalled his association with Saurashtra University and asked the students to take advantage of a variety of courses were being offered to the students literally at their doorstep in a number of specialised universities for Agriculture, Raksha Shakti, Marine, Petroleum, Sanskrit, etc.

Education Minister Bhupendra Chudasama called for judicious application of technology now available at the fingertips of the students, while pursuing their studies. He exhorted students to learn values of life from great persons like Mahatma Gandhi and subsequently take advantage of various government schemes for employment.

Saurashtra University Vice-Chancellor Nilambari Dave welcomed the dignitaries and guests.

Those present on the occasion included Rajkot Mayor Binaben Acharya, Gujarat Municipal Finance Board Chairman Dhansukhbhai Bhandari, MP Mohanbhai Kundaria, MLAs Arvindbhai Raiyani and Lakhbhai Sagathia, Director of Higher Education Lalitbhai Padalia, former Vice-Chancellors Pratapsinh Chauhan and Kamlesh Joshipura, leader Nitin Bharadwaj, Municipal Commissioner Banchhanidhi Pani, artistes Bhikhudhan Gadhvi and Dhirubhai Sarvaiya, Collector Rahul Gupta, Police Commissioner Manoj Agrawal, Syndicate Members, teaching and non-teaching staff and students.

CM Mr. Vijaybhai Rupani honours award winning teachers

Ahmedabad, Gujarat Chief Minister Mr. Vijaybhai Rupani today termed the Guru (Teacher) as worship-able identity in the Indian society and culture and compared him at par with God. He was speaking at a function jointly organised to honour national and state level award winning teachers by the Teachers Federation and Shree Avadhut Credit Co-operative Society at Pramukh Swami Sabhagruh at BAPS Swaminarayan Temple in Rajkot. The Chief Minister also released collection of poetry 'Sabdshuman' of Dr. Pravin Nimavat, telephone directory of members of the federation, and a book of Mr. Mansinh Chaudhary.

Mr. Rupani further stated that a teacher never retires, his contributions to the society goes on for lifetime. He emphasised that the coordination among the teachers of both, old and new generations are very essential for the betterment of the society as well as nation because the former possess a treasure of experiences while latter has instrument of technology at their disposal.

The state government has given specific importance to the education, thus, it has made sufficient allocation of fund for education in the budget of current year.

The function was also graced by Rajkot Mayor Mrs. Binaben Acharya, Municipal Finance Board Chairman Mr. Dhansukhbhai Kundariya, MLA Mr. Arvindbhai Raiyani, Mr. Lakhbhai Sagathia, Mr. Rajubhai Dhruv, Saint Shree Sitaram Bapu and others.

When Generations Collide in the Workplace

New Delhi - Global creative workspace provider Spaces has busted the myth that flexible working and co-working is a new millennial craze, with new research showing that 51% of people born pre-1964 work remotely for more than half the week, in comparison to a similar 49% of those born after 1980.

The digital age has enabled people of all ages to work remotely more than ever before, which has in turn fuelled demand for flexible workspace. However, the latest figures from Spaces show that even digitally native consumers crave personal communications. For people born after 1980, 59% believe flexible workspace keeps employee skills up-to-date through interaction with other professionals, compared to 42% of those born pre-1964.

Spaces specialises in creating collaborative cultures and workspaces that bring people together. The Dutch company is celebrating its tenth birthday this year, having opened its first Spaces in Amsterdam in 2008. It has now over 120 locations across 39 countries worldwide, including recent additions in Hong Kong, London, New York and Paris amongst others. (1-7)
